

BLUM CENTER

FOR DEVELOPING ECONOMIES

IdeaLab Faculty Advisor Agreement

The Blum Center seeks to support student-led organizations that investigate social problems through a multidisciplinary lens, share knowledge and possible solutions, and identify opportunities for UC Berkeley students to take action. In partnership with the Blum Center, these organizations unite students from diverse disciplines to collaborate on broad issues of global significance.

Each IdeaLab reflects the goals and passions of the students behind it. IdeaLabs host regular discussions and events where students gain new perspectives, share ideas, and work together with peers they might never meet in a classroom given members might hail from fields as varied as economics, environmental science, literature, history, political science, social welfare, engineering, business, and international affairs. IdeaLabs are geared toward connecting student leaders who can explore interdisciplinary solutions to critical challenges.

IdeaLabs are encouraged to have a faculty sponsor to provide input and guidance. As the faculty sponsor, we hope you will consider meeting with the IdeaLab student leaders once a semester.
